FOUNDER OF ROCKVILLE DEAF SERVICES COMPANY GETS NINE YEARS FOR FRAUD
A federal judge on Wednesday sentenced John T.C. Yeh, former CEO of Rockville deaf services business Viable, to nine years in prison and ordered him to pay restitution of $20 million for his role in a multimillion-dollar government fraud case. His brother, former Viable vice president Joseph Yeh, received a prison sentence of 55 months on Wednesday and also was ordered by Judge Joel A. Pisano to pay $20 million in restitution. Two other former Viable executives, Anthony Mowl and Donald Tropp, are among those who have pleaded guilty in the case. They are scheduled to be sentenced by Pisano on Dec. 14 in New Jersey, according to court documents. / Gazette

Brenda and Tim Smith didn’t hear the sound of a freight train when an EF5 tornado descended on their East Limestone home April 27. Even as the roof blew off and walls crumbled around them, they didn’t hear a sound. Brenda and Tim felt only the vibrations as chaos surrounded them because they are deaf. They have spent seven months displaced from their home and remain nervous about storms, but the Smiths are grateful this Thanksgiving they survived when many did not. / The News-Courier

Webster Groves, MO
EMPOWERING THE DEAF
Deaf people can usually find ways to respond to doorbells, phone calls or smoke alarms. What’s not so easy to deal with is the insensitivity of those who inhabit the hearing world. Shirley Corbett said she learned about such insensitivity when her deaf father was in the hospital for a cancer operation in 2005. Corbett, who is deaf herself, requested a sign language interpreter at the hospital to no avail. She advised medical authorities that her father was deaf. "After the operation, I left the room for a time, and when I came back, my father had awakened and his hands were strapped down," said Corbett. / Webster Kirkwood Times

KIWI IN HORRIFIC INDONESIAN PLANE CRASH
A deaf person walking across a runway in Indonesia moments before a plane was about to land is believed to be responsible for a horrific crash involving a New Zealand pilot. Jesse Becker is understood to be in a serious condition in hospital after the plane he was piloting crashed in West Papua, Indonesia last Wednesday. Local media reported that, as the Cessna Grand Caravan approached the runway, a deaf person wandered across its path, causing the pilots to abort the landing. As the plane tried to climb, it crashed into Mt Wabu and exploded, police said. The accident killed the plane's co-pilot. / Stuff.co.nz

MUSCOVITE KILLS WIFE, SELF IN FRONT OF DEAF-MUTE SON
A man has killed himself and his wife in the presence of their deaf-mute son in the south-west of Moscow, a police source told RIA Novosti on Friday. Police arrived at the apartment in the Tyoply Stan area of the city late on Thursday after neighbors raised the alarm. They “discovered the deaf-mute son of the deceased, who said that his father had told him his mother was dead before stabbing himself in the chest with a kitchen knife,” the source said. / RIA Novosti

Plymouth, England
WOMAN INTERCEPTED DEAF NEIGHBORS' POST AND BOUGHT HOLIDAY, GIN AND HAIR EXTENSIONS
A woman who intercepted her deaf neighbors' mail spent £15,000 ($23,575 US) of their money on a family holiday to Turkey, £400 ($630 US) -worth of gin and hair extensions among other luxuries, a court heard. Jacqueline Taylor took out loans and credit cards in their names and covered her tracks by intercepting letters and statements from banks and credit card companies. When caught, she tried to blame her victims – a couple who were neighbors and friends for 18 years. Last Friday, a judge jailed Taylor for three years following her guilty pleas to seven counts of theft and 12 of fraud. / This is Plymouth

PILOT PROJECT FOR DEAF LOSES ITS FUNDING
Video Relay Services (VRS) have been helping deaf people communicate in the US for the last decade, but a pilot project which first brought the technology to BC in July 2010 will end January 15th. Money from a Telus deferral account being used to pay for the pilot project will run out in early 2012. It's then up to the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) to decide if a funding model should be developed to return the service. / News1130

NEIGHBORS COMPLAIN DEAF COUPLE IS TOO LOUD
Mike Dumröse, 34, und Natascha Neitzel, 25, have lived together in the city of Hagen for about six months now. Deaf from birth, they communicate through sign language. They also enjoy music by turning songs up full blast in order to feel the vibrations in the walls and floor. But all the noise has annoyed neighbors.
“They're too loud. The other renters have constantly complained,” their landlord said. When the couple found out about the complaints, they were so upset that they decided to leave their apartment and set up a tent at a local park. / The Local

MOJO MATHERS STILL HOPES TO BE NZ’S FIRST DEAF MP
At number 14 on the Green Party list, Mojo Mathers is hoping the special votes will deliver the party another Member of Parliament. The Greens obtained their highest share of party votes ever on Saturday, with their 10.62 per cent giving the party 13 seats. However if enough special votes go the Greens' way, as has been the case in the past, Ms Mathers will become New Zealand's first profoundly deaf MP. / NZ Herald News

SCARSDALE MOM, ADVOCATE FOR THE DEAF, LAUDED NATIONALLY
At age 11, Alexis Ander Kashar got to experience a whole new state when her family moved from New York to Texas. "For the first time I had access to everything," she said. Her awakening ignited a passion for civil rights that would lead Kashar to be one of the most high-profile advocates for the deaf in the country. Her tireless efforts will be recognized Dec. 5 by Jewish Women International, which has named her one of 10 "Women to Watch" in the United States. / The Journal News

CHURCH MARKS TWO YEARS OF SERVING AREA DEAF POPULATION
Gathered in a church rented weekly with their own money, members of On To Victory! Deaf Fellowship Church thanked God and their pastor for the ability to gather and pray in a place where those who can hear are the ones who need interpreters. Pastor Randy Sanders and his congregation on Sunday celebrated the two-year anniversary of their church, an event that resembled more of a family reunion than an actual church ceremony. / Journal Star

DEAF-OWNED MOZZERIA SHOWS SIGNS OF GREAT PIZZA COMING TO THE MISSION
In the vibrant neighborhood around 16th Street and Guerrero, a new Italian restaurant is taking shape. As opening day draws closer, construction continues around the clock. Come by and you may hear the squeal of the electric saw, the clattering of lumber, the whine of an electric drill. But, despite the fact that several people are conversing simultaneously, one noise that's notably absent is the sound of voices. That's because the conversations are all in sign language. The owners and operators of Mozzeria, Melody and Russell Stein, and many of their workers are deaf. / Bay Area Bites

DENTIST IS NOW PROVIDING DENTAL TREATMENTS FOR DEAF AND HARD-OF-HEARING CHILDREN
Dental visits are stressful, especially for kids. For kids who are deaf or hard of hearing, and their parents, these visits can be even more stressful due to the lack of the ability to effectively communicate with the dentist. With her deaf and hard of hearing project, Upland pediatric dentist, Dr. Martinez, is now offering the empathy, patience, and the experience necessary to make dental visits less stressful for children and their parents. / PRWeb
